Hiya, Rebecca! Hope all is well; especially, hope your husband is feeling better, in which prayers are being lifted :)

I realize the holiday Halloween appears to be fun and an enlightenment to our children, and you may think I'm off a wall a bit here..., but what would you say in the Christian world, "Halloween" is actually dangerous? Articles can be found at Ryze Jesus' Love Online Bible. Just a thought, in concerns for our children :)

Rebecca says: and my reply I haven't sent it out yet

Before:

I knew this would open up a can of worms I have heard this since I was a kid, and I don't believe Halloween is bad.

Its a fun time for kids and parents...I could say Harvest time instead of Halloween. Its a celebration of a season and its a celebration of love and memory in my family.

I appreciate your voice and your concern for children.

Each year we decorate and have fun, go trick or treating with my family and their kids come home have chili, play games etc we don't feel Halloween is bad but this is for our own family.

We use this time to remember those we love who have past on to the other side...as did many people did years and years ago. For us its a fun time of year, we do not allow our kids to dress up as devils etc but with that being said I know that some people do not like Halloween call it evil and such.

But this is my belief for my own family just like I am sure others will have a different opinion of the holiday :) which is ok its a free world and I am glad we are not all the same. We should be celebrating our differences rather than worrying about them...as you know I believe in God I am a Christian but for myself and my family I do not believe Halloween is bad...

My children know about the devil and about God, and they know what we believe and what others believe we do this on halloween:

Go out trick or treating the kids dressed up in football uniforms, farmers, etc and have fun running around the neighborhood with their cousins. Then we go home and talk about those we have lost over the years, remember them and thank God for bringing them into our lives, then we eat chili and play card games while the kids sit around the wood stove trading candy.

We have apple dunking contests, doughnut eating contests, scavenger hunts, hay rides and more...

I thank you again for your concern I hope you see how I feel and are not upset by how we celebrate that time of year. :)

After:

I appreciate your concern for our children and the fact that you have taken your time to voice your opinion on this subject. I too have heard statements to this effect since I was a child. However, I don't believe Halloween is entirely bad in and of itself.

How one family chooses to celebrate a given holiday should be between them and their family and their God. The Bible clearly states that all things are for our good and not evil, but man often chooses to subvert them. I refer to two Biblical examples; All things work together for good for those that love the Lord, Romans 8:28. The other precept I live by is I Tim 4:4 "For everything created by God is good and nothing is to be rejected, if it is received with gratitude."

So as you can see it is not the holiday per-say but how you perceive it that should affect how you celebrate. For you it may be evil and as surely as you perceive it to be it is. As for me and my family we receive it with gratitude and so it is for us a day of celebration.

Let me clarify for you how my family and I choose to celebrate so that you will better understand this celebration. Halloween has long been a celebration of love and memory in my family. It's a fun time for kids and parents.

Each year we decorate and have fun, go trick or treating with my family and their children and then come home to enjoy food and fellowship. We warm our stomachs with chili and play games while the children entertain themselves. Our family time together includes remembrances of those we love who have past on to the other side...as did many people years and years ago. For us it's a fun time of year.

As you well know I believe in God and am happy to claim Jesus as my Savior. My children know about the devil and about God, and they know what we believe and what others believe. Because of our belief, we do not allow our kids to dress up as devils etc. Our children all dress up in football uniforms, farmers, etc and have fun running around the neighborhood with their cousins. Then we go home and talk about those we have lost over the years, remember them and thank God for bringing them into our lives, then we eat chili and play games while the kids sit around the wood stove trading candy.

I suppose I could call it Harvest Time instead of Halloween since we also have apple dunking contests, doughnut eating contests, scavenger hunts, hay rides and more...

I thank you again for your concern and hope you better understand how my family and I feel and are not upset by how we celebrate that time of year. I would never want to hurt your faith by something that I do or say. In closing I offer you one last excerpt from God's holy word.

Exhortation to Mutual Forbearance ~ Romans 14:1-6

14:1 Now receive the one who is weak in the faith, and do not have disputes over differing opinions.

14:2 One person believes in eating everything, but the weak person eats only vegetables.

14:3 The one who eats everything must not despise the one who does not, and the one who abstains must not judge the one who eats everything, for God has accepted him.

14:4 Who are you to pass judgment on another's servant? Before his own master he stands or falls. And he will stand, for the Lord is able to make him stand.

14:5 One person regards one day holier than other days, and another regards them all alike. Each must be fully convinced in his own mind.

14:6 The one who observes the day does it for the Lord. The one who eats, eats for the Lord because he gives thanks to God, and the one who abstains from eating abstains for the Lord, and he gives thanks to God.
